

ABSTRACT

A method of reporting search results that preserves important locational information retrieved with the search results. An Hierarchical Data Modeller extracts locational information from each search result and 5 compiles the locational information into a hierarchical storage.

In one embodiment, the search results are presented to the user in a Hierarchical Search Result Workflow document that allows the results to be sorted or otherwise processed by the user for maximum benefit.